Keuka Lake Outlet Trail

Seneca Street, Dresden
Cherry Street, Penn Yan

Distance: 7 miles

Uses: Multipurpose

Rated: Easy

The Outlet Trail takes you on a fascinating trip back in time in both the historical and natural sense. It follows the Keuka Outlet Stream and the abandoned Fall Brook Railroad which was built in 1884 to facilitate commerce between Seneca and Keuka Lakes. All along the Outlet Trail, signs of the former Industrial Age of the 1800's and 1900's are prevalent. Lining the trail are remnants of gristmills, sawmills, distilleries, stone canal locks, and even an abandoned bridge connecting the trail to the once vibrant (now extinct) Town of Hopeton. Additionally, remnants of the Crooked Lake Canal, with its 27 locks, run along the north side of the outlet.

The Outlet Trail maintains a rustic wooded appeal with good bird watching areas and parklands along the dirt and asphalt route. An elevation drop of nearly 300 feet, beautiful scenery, gorgeous waterfalls and unusual plants combine to make this an excellent hike for all enthusiasts.
